

CAESAR GUERINI MAGNUS 20 GAUGE, $3850

GUN TESTS GRADE: B+

This is such a pretty gun, and we think that backed by the amount of hand-finishing both inside and out, as well as the company's invaluable pit-stop program, that it's worth the higher price tag. Its unique pitch configuration will have most shooters firing above their targets. Needs porting.

For almost $1000 more than the Beretta, the Magnus stock figure was fancier than the Beretta's and highlighted by a hand-rubbed finish that showed off the grain.

The Magnus's brushed-nickel finish, gold inlays, and light floral motif metalwork engraving was tasteful and uncluttered. Fit and finish between wood and metal was excellent.

We deducted a couple of points for the beads—a silver mid-rib and a white muzzle-end—just as we did for the Beretta. Fiber-optic pipes should be included on a sporting gun, in our view. The extended choke tubes with markings were a plus.
